CLINKER FOR THE CONNOISSEUR

STYLISH DESIGN...

Patoka boasts a unique kiln, which is one of the last of its kind in the world, and in which exceptional bricks and clay pavers are fired. The uniqueness of the products results by no means from sorcery or magic spells (although, no one knows for sure ...). It is the traditional production process, unchanged for centuries, which gives the clinker its unique features, unobtainable in modern plants.

The unusual aesthetics and proven quality of Patoka clinker result from the original firing technology. The firing process takes place in a traditional coal-fired Hoffman kiln – one of the few of its kind in the world. The bricks and clay pavers fired in the kiln are characterized by unique colours and physical properties. Their exceptional aesthetics is valued by the investors and architects alike. A wide range of colours (from red to graphite) and deslagging enable one to design unique facades.

The Patoka brick factory also produces special bricks used to renovate historical buildings or perform restoration works. The clinker from Patoka can be found, among others, in the Wawel Royal Castle, Jasna Góra Monastery, Warsaw Barbican or the Malbork Castle.
